

The following list of deceased Delaware County servicemen - and one woman - appeared on the front page of The Walton Reporter two days after Japan surrendered to the United States, on 14 August 1946. The precise number of dead was uncertain at the time of publication. The Reporter noted, "War Department List Inaccurate: The war department list contained 110 names. Fifteen of these were men of whom The Reporter had no record. The department was given this information and a letter just received states that these names were included in the list through error. The war department list was far from complete and did not include names of many men from Delaware county known to have lost their lives."
